Fancy Intense Argyle Pink Diamond Earrings

The two Round Fancy Intense Pink diamond center stones from the legendary Argyle Mine in Western Australia are certified by the Gemological Institute of America (GIA). Each is set in a stunning floral motif with 10 pear-shaped Argyle Pink diamonds and 10 pear-shaped white diamonds.

“The Argyle Diamond Mine is due to cease production at the end of this decade, rendering its limited supply of rare Argyle Pink diamonds even rarer,” said Joe Padulo, CEO of Padulo Privé and an adviser to elite jewelers and luxury brands.

Each Modified Radiant yellow diamond is cut from a 50+ carat rough diamond from South Africa. “One Fancy Intense Yellow diamond of this size, color saturation and clarity is a rarity,” said Padulo. “A matched pair is beyond rare.”

The Fancy Intense Yellow diamonds are accompanied by certificates from the GIA. (Please note: The ear clips have a pierced-and-clip style backing.)

A Brilliant Investment Choice

Fancy Color Diamonds have experienced unprecedented appreciation in the last few years, as one after another, “per-carat price” and “total price” world records have been broken at leading auction houses Christie’s and Sotheby’s.

Reporting for RapaportDiamonds.net, Avi Krawitz writes: “That rarity is also spurring a new penchant for colored diamonds among collectors and investors alike. Growing wealth in Asia, Eastern Europe and the Middle East has helped maintain high demand for colored diamonds as the new rich recognize its investment value. In addition, the market has been buoyed as high-end consumers in the U.S. and Europe have regained some lost confidence.”
